

Hyundai Motor Company plant

Located in Deltamas industrial complex near Cikarang, Indonesia, Hyundai completed the construction of its first factory in Southeast Asia region with an initial production capacity of 150,000 units, serving a key hub for Hyundai Motor's future mobility strategy.

Hyundai Motor Company has inaugurated its first manufacturing plant in Southeast Asia, marking a significant milestone in its global expansion strategy. Located in Indonesia, this advanced facility is designed to bolster Hyundai's production capabilities and enhance its competitive edge in the region. To support the plant's infrastructure, VSH Shurjoint's ductile iron grooved piping products (DN65 to DN350) were selected for their reliability and efficiency in the HVAC and fire protection systems to ensure the safety and optimal environmental conditions of this new manufacturing site.
